- C) usually deals with subjects belonging to the remote past
- D) emphasizes man's willingness to do evil
- E) puts a greater importance on settings than on characters

58-60. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Black slavery was a system of labour brought into being by Europeans to develop their settlements in the Americas, using labour from Africa, and all to satisfy the tastes of the Europeans. Tobacco for the pipes of Englishmen, rum to temper the squalor of life between decks on British warships, coffee for the fashionable society of London's clubs, sugar to sweeten the miserable diet of working people — these and other products spilt forth from the slave colonies of the Americas. Slaves transformed the tastes of the western world just as surely as slavery changed forever the face of the Americas and of Africa. Today both Africa and the Americas still feel the results.

58- The author's opinion is that the motivation behind the system of black slavery was

- A) to change the face of Africa and the Americas
- B) to provide luxury items for Europe
- C) to transform the tastes of the western world
- D) to supply manpower for British warships
- E) to promote good relations between the races

59- According to the passage, such items as tobacco, rum, coffee and sugar

- A) were part of the diet of slaves
- B) were exported from Europe to settlements in the Americas
- C) were produced by slave labour in the Americas
- D) contributed to the freedom of black slaves
- E) allowed slaves to earn enough to live comfortably

60- The passage tells us that present-day Africa and the Americas

- A) reflect the effects of the black slavery system
- B) owe their affluence to the slave labour
- C) greatly benefit from the wealth created by the slave trade
- D) still have places where slavery is practised
- E) try hard to get rid of the results of the former slavery system

61-63. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

The takeover of the Greek and Phoenician civilisations by that of Rome in the centuries before the birth of Christ saw a dramatic shift in power away from the Levant towards Europe and the West. The great military empire built by the Romans was largely land-based, though of course, the cross-Channel incursion into Britain in 55 BC, followed by full-scale invasion about a century later, required war ships and military transports. It was, however, the domination of the Mediterranean by the power of Rome which enabled trade to thrive largely free of piracy. When Carthage, a Phoenician colony in modern Tunisia, was defeated in the Punic Wars, Rome's dominance was established in the Mediterranean. Following this war, even Egypt became a province of the Roman Empire.

61- The passage concentrates on

- A) the decline of the Greek and Phoenician civilisations
- B) the role of the Punic Wars in establishing Roman power
- C) the rise of the Roman Empire
- D) Roman sea power
- E) the conquest of Britain by Rome

62- According to the passage, the invasion of Britain by Rome

- A) necessitated maritime military preparations
- B) was the most important step in Rome's domination of the Mediterranean
- C) was more important than the takeover of the Greek and Phoenician civilisations
- D) was undertaken to defeat British pirates
- E) required only land-based military power

63- We learn from the passage that because of the Punic Wars,

- A) Rome felt free to invade Britain
- B) Carthage became known as Tunisia
- C) the Greek and Phoenician civilisations were taken over by Rome
- D) Egypt rebelled against the Roman Empire
- E) Rome was able to make Egypt part of its empire

64-66. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Nobody likes paying university tuition fees. West Europeans, especially, seem allergic to the idea. But in eastern Europe, we see a fast-changing educational landscape as more and more people, not happy with the standards at state universities, pay to send their children to private, tuition-financed universities. In Romania, nearly a third of the students in higher education have gone private. Within a year of the country's Communist leader, Nicolae Ceausescu, being shot in 1989, more than 40 private universities had sprung up. In Poland, where business schools have boomed, more than a quarter of students at the higher level have gone private. In several other central European countries, the figure is above 10% and rising. In most countries of the former Soviet Union, private education has also taken off.

64- In the passage, the phrase "university tuition fees" refers to

- A) the best opportunity for higher education
- B) a universally popular system
- C) tax-financed university education
- D) a charge for private university education
- E) a system particularly popular in western Europe

65- It is understood from the passage that private education

- A) accounts for a majority of universities in Poland
- B) was the cause of the death of Communist leader Nicolae Ceausescu
- C) is achieving a wide-scale popularity in eastern Europe
- D) is more popular in western Europe than in eastern Europe
- E) is struggling to survive in eastern Europe

66- It is obvious from the passage that people in eastern Europe

- A) are richer than those in western Europe
- B) are dissatisfied with state-supported higher education
- C) do not like to pay to go to university
- D) are better educated than those in western Europe
- E) have few educational opportunities

67-69. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

In the year 1900, physicists were feeling quite sure of themselves. Many of them thought they had the universe all figured out. The majestic clockwork wound up by Isaac Newton was running exactly as predicted. Later discoveries in fields as diverse as heat, light and electricity all seemed to fit into the grand scheme of things. New telescopes were mapping the heavens and revealing that the Earth and its sun were part of a huge, but measurable star system, the Milky Way, that seemed to encompass the whole universe. Then came quantum theory and relativity, plus the discoveries of the atomic nucleus and other galaxies besides the Milky Way. Suddenly scientists realised that, far from knowing everything, they knew almost nothing.

67- According to the passage, the discovery of quantum theory and relativity led to

- A) the invention of the first telescope able to map the heavens
- B) scientists realising how ignorant they really were
- C) finding a way of measuring distances to other stars
- D) the confirmation of the facts previously known about the universe
- E) the development of the theories of Isaac Newton

68- We understand from the passage that physicists in 1900

- A) were aware that there were still a lot to discover
- B) understood the exact nature of the universe
- C) did not trust the theories of Isaac Newton
- D) understood the true nature of the Milky Way
- E) thought they knew far more than they actually did

69- We can conclude from the passage that, the currently accepted belief is that

- A) there are galaxies in the universe other than the Milky Way
- B) Milky Way is the galaxy that encompasses the whole universe
- C) the system set by Isaac Newton is running exactly as he predicted
- D) heat, light and electricity are the most important discoveries in the human history
- E) it is not possible to map the universe using telescopes

Theodore Roosevelt was the most eccentric of American presidents and one of the ablest. He radiated good humour, warmth and ideas. If not precisely an intellectual, he was intelligent and well-read — a bookworm in fact — while also fond of the energetic life and the great outdoors. He managed to combine remarkable political skill with comprehensive vision. It is startling to see how much his speeches and policies on natural conservation, for instance, anticipated some of our concerns today. Perhaps, as president, he never encountered the challenges that were worthy of him — no civil war, no world wars, no Great Depression — but that was his country's good fortune and, in part, his own work, for he was an excellent diplomat.

70- The author points out that some of our worries about nature today

- A) result from certain policies of Roosevelt
- B) are the result of wide-scale world wars
- C) were foreseen by Theodore Roosevelt
- D) have been threatening the world since Roosevelt's time
- E) date back to when Roosevelt was the president

71- The author points out that one of Roosevelt's accomplishments was

- A) to make long speeches
- B) to avoid war
- C) to startle his audiences with his speeches
- D) to win the Civil War
- E) to overcome the Great Depression

72- According to the passage, Theodore Roosevelt

- A) was not such a flexible politician
- B) spent too much time on outdoor sports to deal with state affairs properly
- C) had little concern for the environment
- D) was both capable and unconventional
- E) had to overcome a civil war and a world war

73-75. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Any similarity between primitive and present-day doctoring is, of course, purely accidental. Since ancient societies usually blamed illness on demons or other supernatural forces that invaded the body, it followed that disgusting and foul-tasting materials, plus prayers and chanting, could drive them out. Gradually, however, as enterprising medicine men experimented with vegetable and animal products, they built up a crude but effective list of medicines. By trial and error, they learnt which herbs were poisonous, and that even lethal ones might be helpful in small doses. From Babylonian and Assyrian stone tablets, we know that they used many deadly plants. We also know that these toxic plants have therapeutic value. In fact, many of the chemicals they contain are still used in standard drugs today.

73- The author suggests that as primitive people believed that illness was caused by supernatural forces in the body,

- A) their aim was to drive them out by nasty medicines
- B) doctors could only cure people accidentally
- C) they thought that good people wouldn't get ill
- D) illness was a disgusting and shameful matter
- E) their only treatments were prayers and chanting

74- The author makes it clear that the medicine men of the past learnt which plants were poisonous by

- A) testing them using them in small amounts first
- B) doing scientific experiments on them
- C) trying them and learning from their mistakes
- D) consulting the list of medicines available
- E) trying new plants on animals first

75- According to the passage, the plants used by medicine men

- A) tended to be harmless, but often had a disgusting flavour
- B) have been discovered along with ancient stone tablets
- C) generally killed as many people as they managed to cure
- D) were sometimes mixed with stone crushed to powder to make tablets
- E) often contained chemicals now used in modern medicine

81- Sugar cane cultivation is an ancient art, originating in New Guinea, moving slowly westwards and entering Europe, via the Arab conquest of the southern Mediterranean, by the 8th century AD. Gradually Europeans began their own sugar cultivation in Sicily, Cyprus, southern Italy, Portugal and, later, Spain. Sugar from these islands was marketed into northern Europe through a string of major ports. Thus was created the commercial system of production and supply and, equally important, the fashionable demand for cane sugar in northern Europe.

- A) These last two transplanted cane production to the Atlantic islands and then to the African coast
- B) Sugar is still produced in Europe, but it comes from sugar beets rather than from cane
- C) Before the use of sugar became widespread, honey was the most important sweetener
- D) Today we take sugar so much for granted that it is difficult to imagine a time when it was a luxury item
- E) Slave labour was used to produce sugar on large plantations

82- In 1866, an unfortunate early Victorian missionary went to the island of Nanumea in the South Pacific. His intention was "to turn the islanders from heathenism to Christianity". The Egyptians had encountered rival societies in the eastern Mediterranean as early as 3000 BC, and vessels were trading with Egypt by around 1500 BC from the islands in and around the Aegean. Here a war between the Greeks and the Minoans had resulted in the latter being driven out of their homeland, Crete. It is possible that the Minoans were the enemy known to the Egyptians as the Sea People or the People from the Sea. Other suggestions are that they were the Mycenaeans, Phoenicians or Therans, but whoever they were, they invaded Egypt and started a war with Pharaoh Ramses III. The battle, the first recorded naval engagement, is depicted on the victorious Pharaoh's tomb and marks the entry of the warship into the story of sail.

55- We learn from the passage that the Minoans

- A) were originally from Crete
- B) drove the Greeks from Crete
- C) invaded Egypt around 3000 BC
- D) invaded Egypt at the time of Ramses III
- E) were the Mycenaeans by another name

56- According to the passage, the group called by the Egyptians as the Sea People

- A) fought with the Greeks and the Minoans
- B) defeated Ramses III in a sea battle
- C) were possibly the same as the Phoenicians
- D) definitely came from Crete
- E) successfully invaded Egypt

57- The battle between Ramses III and the Sea People

- A) was won by the Sea People
- B) ended with no definite winner
- C) showed how strong the Minoans were
- D) nearly put an end to Egypt's dominance at sea
- E) was the first known sea battle

In 1960 oil was struck offshore from the coast of Abu Dhabi. It was a major strike, and Abu Dhabi was clearly destined for immense wealth, a radical change from what it had been. This created several problems. In the first place, the ruler of Abu Dhabi at the time was the eccentric Sheikh Shakbut. His lack of capacity to deal with his sudden wealth was total. For example, he rejected any system of cheques or credit. He would wake up the startled young manager of the newly established British Bank of the Middle East after midnight, insisting on seeing all his wealth in cash.

58- We understand from the passage that before oil was struck, Abu Dhabi

- A) was among the richest in the Middle East
- B) had a lot of social and financial problems
- C) was ruled by an enlightened family
- D) was not a place with much money
- E) already had a flourishing economy

59- It is obvious from the passage that Sheikh Shakbut

- A) enjoyed spending his money
- B) did not understand modern financial institutions
- C) was the inspiration behind discovering oil
- D) was not good at solving his country's problems
- E) was very stingy with his newly-earned money

60- The passage tells us that one of the problems created by Abu Dhabi's new wealth was

- A) transporting the oil which was discovered off the coast
- B) the new political system
- C) the ruler's inability to handle it
- D) the young manager of the British Bank of the Middle East
- E) an unreliable banking system

61-63. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

The director Robert Altman spent three decades after his first hit film, the 1970 war satire *M*A*S*H*, telling the US what was wrong with it. Whether it was the unlikely mixture of country music and politics in Nashville, the critical view of Hollywood in The Player or the suburban epic Short Cuts. American audiences reluctantly recognised the merits of Altman's films but rarely gave him whole-hearted approval at the box office. Europeans loved the independent director's take on just about all things American, partly because his bold observations reflected their own perceptions of the superpower's arrogance and greed. In fact, Altman's name stands today next to the European Bergman's, Fellini's and Truffaut's much more naturally than beside the American Coppola's, Scorsese's or Spielberg's.

61- What is emphasized in the passage is

- A) the reason Robert Altman's first film, *M*A*S*H*, was so popular
- B) why Robert Altman is not as good a director as Bergman, Fellini or Truffaut
- C) Robert Altman's lack of ability as a director
- D) why Robert Altman is more popular in Europe than in America
- E) the reasons Robert Altman cannot be compared to Coppola, Scorsese or Spielberg

62- We can conclude from the passage that a common characteristic of Altman's films is

- A) a critical view of American society
- B) criticism of how films are made in Hollywood
- C) whole-hearted approval of the American way of life
- D) disapproval of European arrogance and greed
- E) a satirical approach to war

63- We learn from the passage that Robert Altman's films

- A) have never been appreciated artistically in America
- B) have seldom been financially successful in America
- C) are found too much American by Europeans
- D) are usually about American heroes
- E) are the best of the late 20th century

64-66. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

The great Florentine palazzo of the Medici, begun in 1444, with its massive walls and commanding city-centre site, established the principle of the bankers' domination of the commercial cities. For five centuries, all subsequent banks were influenced by the arrogance, solidity and permanence of the Medicis' base. But then, sometime around the middle of the 20th century, modernism struck. Everything changed; chunky stone walls fell out of favour to be replaced by glazed lobbies with automatic glass doors. With the introduction of the ATM, money could be obtained from a hole in the wall anywhere in the world. There was now no need even for a building, and architecture stopped to be a means of expressing the wealth and reliability of a city-centre bank or a suburban branch. The bank lost its purpose as a building type.

64- According to the passage, the design of bank buildings

- A) is still influenced by the great Florentine palazzo of the Medici
- B) is developed from security rather than aesthetic concerns
- C) underwent a radical change about 50 years ago
- D) should make customers feel that their money is safe
- E) has always remained more or less the same

65- It is understood from the passage that, before the 20th century, bank buildings were

- A) beginning to lose their purpose as a building type
- B) only built in busy commercial cities
- C) limited in their design by lack of technology
- D) actually more modern than later ones
- E) meant to emphasize the importance of bankers

66- We understand from the passage that one influence of the ATM was

- A) to eliminate the need for bank buildings
- B) to introduce modernism into the architecture of banks
- C) to express the wealth and reliability of a bank
- D) to make the client of a bank feel more confident
- E) to necessitate larger bank buildings

The problem with Prague is that it is just too attractive. Somehow it escaped the wars that devastated Europe over the centuries. With its Romanesque and Baroque churches and Gothic cathedral; its medieval castle with classical edges; its palaces and noble houses; its narrow streets and old squares, with the façades all painted in rainbow colours, Prague quickly became a nostalgic place of the past when eastern Europe opened up a decade ago. It also became a favoured location for films, such as Amadeus, telling the life of the brilliant composer Mozart. The price paid for such instant nostalgia was that Prague soon matched Venice or Florence in tourist pollution.

67- We understand from the passage that a distinctive characteristic of Prague is that

- A) it has a flourishing film industry
- B) it was the scene of many wars throughout history
- C) so many of its old buildings have survived
- D) it has only one style of architecture
- E) it has had extensive restoration work

68- According to the passage, visitors have been attracted to Prague

- A) since the release of the film Amadeus
- B) because it is so well-preserved
- C) to visit the famous composer Mozart's homeland
- D) to escape devastating wars
- E) mainly to see the beautiful Gothic cathedral

69- From his statement, it is clear that the author regards tourism as

- A) Prague's opportunity to collect the money needed for its restoration
- B) the best thing that ever happened to Prague
- C) something that has the same beneficial effects on Prague as it has had on Venice and Florence
- D) a potentially negative influence on Prague
- E) a way to attract film-makers

Photography played a special role in Vietnam's 30-year struggle for independence. Ho Chi Min himself worked in a photographic lab in Paris. In September, 1945, after his guerrillas marched into Hanoi and declared independence from France, Ho immediately commissioned a first official portrait photo, which provided ordinary Vietnamese with their first glimpse of a leader few could then have recognised. Three official photographers accompanied Ho during the subsequent war against the French, which ended in the French defeat at Dien Bien Phu. Communist North Vietnam fielded its own small army of war photographers against the Americans in the 1960s and early 70s. They were told that they were fighting the war with their cameras.

70- We learn from the passage that Ho Chi Min was

- A) the pioneering photographer of Vietnam
- B) the leader of the Vietnamese independence movement
- C) a successful Vietnamese photographer
- D) the man who introduced photography to Vietnam
- E) an ineffectual guerrilla fighter

71- The author points out that at the time Vietnam declared independence from France,

- A) not many Vietnamese knew what Ho Chi Min looked like
- B) French agreement was peacefully secured
- C) most Vietnamese supported the guerrillas whole-heartedly
- D) photography was a popular hobby among the Vietnamese
- E) Ho Chi Min was working in a photographic lab in Paris

72- As we understand from the passage, Vietnamese photographers

- A) concentrated on taking portraits of their leaders
- B) were trained in laboratories in France
- C) participated in a long war against two enemies
- D) were not allowed to participate in the independence struggle
- E) were always hampered by lack of equipment

73-75. soruları aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

The technology that is supposed to liberate us, and which has in fact cut down household chores to a few minutes a day, has paradoxically made our lives busier. Indeed, electric lighting has been the prime culprit in stealing our sleep and making us feel more pressed than ever. We sleep nearly two hours less per night on average than 100 years ago. Taxi drivers in London say nights are the busiest time of the day. This is because businesses with overseas connections, law firms in particular, work all night to suit different time zones around the world. Those employed in such firms get take-away meals taxied in, and go home just before public transport starts in the morning.

73- The passage informs us that technology has made our lives busier

- A) particularly in the last century
- B) although it should have made them easier
- C) by freeing us from the restrictions of work places
- D) by cutting down the time we spend on household chores
- E) because life has become more expensive

74- We learn from the passage that the main reason people sleep less now than they did 100 years ago is that

- A) there are different time zones in the world
- B) it is so easy to get take-away meals whenever needed
- C) people do less manual labour now and so get less tired
- D) there is too much to learn and to accomplish
- E) electric lighting helps extend the amount of working hours

75- According to the passage, taxis are busy at night in London because

- A) so many people enjoy night-life there
- B) there is not much work in the house to make people stay in their homes
- C) public transport does not start until morning
- D) companies doing international businesses operate until very late
- E) the fares are much lower then

81- Pythons are Old World snakes, inhabiting Australasia, Southeast Asia, India and Africa. Boas are mainly New World snakes, with a few representatives in Madagascar, northern Africa, the Near East and India. Pythons lay eggs, arrange them in a pile and coil around the clutch until they hatch. Boas, however, incubate their eggs internally and give birth to live young.

- A) Pythons and boas rarely attack humans deliberately; they have done so by mistake, or in defense when provoked or startled
- B) A professional keeper feeds even the tamest boa with a long-handled tool so that the snake cannot confuse the keeper with food
- C) Most pythons have heat-sensing organs in their lip scales that help them detect any object whose temperature exceeds that of the surrounding area
- D) The natural populations of large boas and pythons are declining in many parts of the world
- E) Although sometimes classified as in the same family as the boa, pythons are distinguished from boas in several ways

82- According to some theorists, almost anyone can be a genius if they focus on a single endeavour to the exclusion of everything else. Likewise, many other geniuses, particularly artists and composers, notoriously spent some, or all, of their time so wrapped up in their own world that they were hardly aware of the real one around them. But how can people today maintain such focus when they face so many distractions?

- A) If this is the case, there must be more geniuses than we actually have
- B) It is worth a try, but you probably have to start early in life
- C) On the other hand, some people have concentrated all their lives on trying to write a novel and have still failed

- D) "Genius" as a quality is actually very difficult to define
- E) Certainly, this is what Newton believed, claiming no more for himself than the ability to concentrate 83- The people of Genoa call their city La Superba, "The Proud." Its white houses are built on the mountain slopes of the Ligurian Apennines above a sheltered harbour at the head of the Gulf of Genoa. They all show the city's historical greatness. Crowded shipping in the harbour and skyscrapers rising in the business district, on the other hand, indicate the city's present-day prosperity as Italy's chief port.

- A) Bombing of the city in World War II damaged both the harbour and industrial plants
- B) Genoa is the gateway to Italy's northern plains — the heart of the country's agriculture
- C) Among them stand medieval churches and Renaissance palaces

READING COMPREHENSION PASSAGES

1. ROME'S FOUNTAINS

Most great cities have beautiful fountains, but in Rome they are a living part of the city. Italian poets have immortalised them in verse. One of Italy's major composers, Ottorino Respighi, enshrined them in two richly descriptive symphonic poems. Books about Rome's fountains published in Italian, French and English have contributed to their fame. The best known is Niccolo Salvi's 18th-century Fountain of Trevi. It is a tradition for visitors to cast small coins into its churning waters, allegedly to ensure their eventual return to Rome for Christians, and for others, to ensure that their dreams have come true. The most imaginative fountain is probably Bernini's Fountain of the Four Rivers. Another by Bernini is the graceful Fountain of the Triton on the Piazza Barberini. In the Piazza della Repubblica is the colossal Fountain of the Naiads. Its charming beauties wrestle with seaborne monsters. The Fountain of the Barcaccia in the Piazza di Spagna was designed like a leaking boat by Bernini's father, Pietro. One of the pleasures of a visit to Rome is a night tour of the city's numerous illuminated fountains.

2. THE PYRENEES

Of all Europe's mountain ranges, the jagged and often snow-capped Pyrenees, 435 kilometres long, have functioned most effectively as a barrier to human movement. Unlike the Alps, the Pyrenees have no low foothills or hospitable valleys to ease access into and through their heights. Rather, the Pyrenees rise abruptly from the flanking plains of France and Spain with only steep gorges and steep-walled natural amphitheatres that lead to almost impassable lofty summits. The French peasant's maxim, "Africa begins with the Pyrenees," is not without a large measure of truth in emphasizing the historic significance of the Pyrenees as a barrier in the development of Spain. In the words of the American historian Will Durant, Spain's mountains, particularly the Pyrenees, "were her protection and tragedy: they gave her comparative security from external attack, but hindered her economic advance, her political unity and her participation in European thought."

3. AN EXAMPLE OF ABSTRACT ART

'Intention', by Paul Klee, does not draw upon recognisable subject matter. It is a picture of a thought process. Klee has given us an idea of what an intention might be composed of. Slightly to the left of the centre is a simplified outline of a body and in the head at the top is a single eye. A large number of forms surround it, signifying the thoughts which might go to make up an intention. Many are easily distinguished — a tree, an animal, several figures. Others are vague, and the simple forms might be interpreted in many ways. Some of these are shown by themselves, but some are joined to other forms. The background is a clear brick, red on one side, and on the other side, it is dull green. Perhaps the painter is saying that some thoughts are sharp and clearly remembered; others are dim and vague.

4. EVEN BETTER THAN TODAY'S TEXTILES

People living long ago on the hot coastal strip of Peru created some of the world's most beautiful textiles. Archaeologists have found an amazing quantity of these in "mummy bundles" tucked away in tombs. These ancient people of the Andean region, like those of Egypt, believed the dead needed articles from this life to use in their future life. Some fragments of the cloth are 3,000 years old, but the finest examples belong to the period between about AD 300 and 1000. The people who wove these textiles spun fine, smooth yarn of cotton or the wool of alpacas, llamas and vicunas. They used most weaves known today and some too complicated for modern looms. They were expert dyers, with almost 200 hues at their command. With their many-coloured yarns they worked out gay, elaborate designs. They wove cloth ingeniously into the shapes of garments and other articles, for they did not cut and sew.

5. THE PURPOSE OF VISITING AMERICA

During 1831 and 1832 two Frenchmen, Alexis de Tocqueville and Gustave de Beaumont, toured the United States. After their visit, each wrote a book. Beaumont's volume is about slavery. Tocqueville's is the classic 'Democracy in America'. Publication of the books obscured the original purpose of their visit. The two men had been sent to the United States as delegates from the French government to inspect the American prison system. They were among many Europeans who visited the United States with the same intention, because the modern prison system for the confinement of convicted criminals was invented in the United States in the 1790s. Places of confinement were not new. London had its Tower and Paris its Bastille. These were for confining political prisoners, however, not for criminals in the ordinary sense. The common jail has existed since at least 1166, when England's King Henry II ordered jails built. Jails were then, as they are now, mainly for prisoners awaiting trial, but they also held petty offenders such as beggars and debtors. What was new about the American prison system was its purpose. It was designed more as a means of reforming the offender than as punishment for committing a crime.
